But the Government owns none of the mines and has never exercised the overeign right of ownership. Notwithstanding this enormous drain apon the mines, we must assume that they are near exhaustion. Up to 1848 the total amoun of gold deposited in the mints since their arst establishment-a period of fifty-five vesrs-amounted to less than twenty mil-Hon dollars; while thirteen years later, that s June 30th, 1862, the deposits of domestic gold had reached the enermous oum of $554,506,002, of which five hundred and twenty-eight million came from California. Non-conductors should be worn in summer as well as in winter. The occlest dress a person could wear in summer would be one of woolsn as tight as the skin; not tighter than that, as one fellow complained his pants were, for he said he could sit down in his skin without eplitting it, but he couldn't in his pants. Laborers at forges and furnaces wear woolen shirte, which absorb the perspiration readily and allow it to evaporate, which process cools the surface, while cotton will not only absorb moisture but retain it more persis ently. If non-conducting clothing is desirable in the working hours, much more sois it proper when the body reposes passively People take cold much more easily when asleep than awake, and hence wooler sheets and blankets are worth adoption bedding to the exclusion of cetton; and it ie quite possible that a silk or weelen cap might be of signal asrvice in preventing baldness and grayness, as such an article is recommended to those who are sufferers from

The worth of the physical exercise as a means in keeping the ekin in a healthy condition can hardly be overrated. It condition can hardly be overrated. It gives a healthy hue to the cheeks and vigor to the excreting functions generally. It is not necessary or advisable to exercise violently, and the severer movements of the gymnasinm and the boat race, draw ing powerfully on both muscular and ner-vous systems, are entirely unnecessary if noi positively injurious so far as mere exer-else for health is concerned. There is no necessity for eschewing utilitarian labor, even such as gardening, sawing of wood, showsling of snow, or even walking, and the youth who engages in such labors as will aid others as well as himself is doubla benefactor. The effect of temperature and exercise, or the want of it combined, is well shown in the menkey. In his native woods, surrounded by a tropical heat, life is con-stant motion with him. Brought north and caged, with limited opportunities for movement, he dies with consumption, and foul air gets the curse, while a proper undsrstanding of the action of the external surface under the two conditions would suggest quite a different epitaph.

A RAINY DAY IN CAMP.

It's a lonesome, ch'erless evening,
When the soaking, sodden ground
Will not esho to the foot-fall
Of the sentinel's dull round.

God's blue star-spangled benner To-night is not unfasied; Surely He has not deserted This weary, weary world.

I peer into the darkness, And the crowding fancies come; The night wind, blowing Northward, Carries all my heart toward home. For I 'listed in this srmy, Not exactly to my mind; But my country called for helper And I couldn't stay behind.

So I've had a sight of drilling.
And have roughed it many ways,
And death has nearly had me;
Yet I think the service pays.

It's a blessed sort of feeling, Whether you live or die; You helped your country in her need, And fought right loyally. But I can't help thinking sometimes,

And the far, familiar faces Peep in at the lant door, And the little children's footsteps Go pit-pat on the floor; Ica 't betp thinking, somehow, Of a'l the parson reads About that other soldter life Which every true man leads...

The Madrid Court of Assizes is now compied in trying a servant maid on a charge of having murdered her mistress in January iast, under most atrocious circumstances. The prisoner's counsel has pleaded that his client was insane, or possessed by evil spirits, and has supported his pleaby quoting a vast number of texts from Scripture. The court has not yet decided on the admissibility of this plea.

A MOTHER'S WAGES

BY THE EFFEREND THEODORE L. CUTLER. It was an uncouth bird's nest of rushes in which Jochebed mcored her bird among the flags by the river's brink

Little did she know what precious freigh she was intrusting to that basket-cradle And little did Pharach's daughter knowwhen she took the little founding out of the floating basket—what manuer of child he yet would be. As she gives back the handsome boy into the very bosom that first gavo him life, she says lo Joshebed, "Take this shild away and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wayes."

I will give thee thy wages, says the Egyptian princes to the Hebrew purse

She got her wager in better coin than silver or gold. She got them in the joys a mother feels when she yields up a part of A man in Fairfield, Ohio, atole fortyfive dollars in greenbacks. By statute in that State the atcaling of thirty-five dollars conshe got them in the glorious service which her child wrought for Israel in after years She was paid in the heavenly coin with which God pays good mothers. For al

The court ensisted the plea.

Sad Occurrence —Oa Friday night the dwelling house of Mrs. Charlotte Tager, in Chest township, Cambria county, Pa., together with its contents, was estirely destroyed by fire. The family succeeded in making their escape in their night clothes from the fames, with the exception of a little boy three years boar with it as Thou bear est with ns. We bear with it as Thou bearest with ns. will be thankful, that it may never learn falesehood. We will nurse this soul in its infancy, with the 'sincere milk' of love, that in after years it may bear 'strong meat for strong service of God and righte-ousness. Oh! God, make our lives in harmony with Thee, that this young life may effect thine image in reflecting ours! To such pious fidelity God offers the only wages that can satisfy the claims of love. He pays the heart's claim in the heart's own coin. What wages could repay Han-uah's prayerful care like the sight of Samuel's after carcerss Israel's upright Judge? Moses standing on the mount was the "wages" of the poor liebrew mother who gradled him in her basket of rushes. St. Augustine's mighty service for the gospel was the best reward that God could give to Monica. John Wesley's mother was repaid for all her patient discipline when her son built the world-wide tabernacle for Methodism to worship in. George Washington was God's reward to Washington's good mother; as Archibald Alexander, and Brown of Haddington, and Lyman Beecher found their "wages" in the noble sons who took the gospel banner from their aged bands.

When I have seen a happy father and mother looking on the prizes their children brought home from school, or enjoying the home that final love had provided for their old age, then have I seen how God rewards parental patience and fidelity. When I have seen pious parents beholding their children as they stood up before the altar to profess Christ in the freshness of a youthful consecration, then I have said to myself, "God is paying those parents their wages." They once dropped the seed with faith and tears; now, their sheaf is large and golden. God rewards a mother's fidelity and a father's godly example with accumulating interest through all elernity.
Alas! I have seen other "wages" too. paid dearly for, by parents! impietly or neglect of duty. Ell's sin was repaid in Ell's sorrow. I have seen a frivolous, prayerless mother paid in the wages of a broken heart. And when to many a father's door a drunken son has been brough home from a Sabbath-breaking debauch was only the wages of his own ain which a just God was paying him. The "wages of sin is death"—and of no sin more surely than parental. It is death to peace of mind—death to domestic happiness—death to the neglected or misguided souls of their Take this child and nurse it for ME, and will give thee thy wages—is the inscrip-tion which God's hand writes on every cra-"When I dressed my child each morning, I prayed that Jesus would clothe morning, I prayed that Jesus would clothe it with purity," said a goodly mother to one who inquired her secret of good irringing. "When I wash it, I pray that His blood will cleanse its young soul from evil; when I feed it, I pray that its heart may be nourished with truth, and may grow into likeness with the youthful Jesus of Nazareth." Here was religious training from the cradle. It began with the dawn, and its course was like the sun, growing more full-orbed in beauty till the "parfect day." That mother received her golden day." That mother received her golden wages in the early conversion, usefuluess and honor of all her children. "Go thou and do likewise."

"I was thinking too deer mother, As I laid my tors away, All of which you gave me, mother, I'd no gift for you to-day, So I thought thal I would tell you Just before I said 'Good-night.' Something that I hongst would please For I know you'll think it right.

"I've made up my mind, dear mother,
To be gentle, good, and mild—
Try in all things now to please you,
Like a little Christian Child;
And I know the loving Saviour,
Who was born on earth to-day,
If I pray to Him to aid me,
He will guide me to the way.

"Pon't you like your present, mother,
For your ten's are failing fast?"
"Ah, my darling, Christinas evening
Brings and memories of the past.
I was thinking of your father;
Would that he were here to-nightl
'Sad,' you ca'l me now, my darling,
Were he here, all would be bright.

"We'll love my little daughter, Prectons is her gift to me; Yet my thoughts will fondly wender To her father on the sea. Three long years 'tis since he teft us, Far, far o'er the eeas to roam; Let us, ere we sleep, my daughter, Pray to God to bring him home."

Long before the glowing embers Sit the mother and her child, Sit the mother and ner casu, Soft careses pass between them— Loving words and accents mild. Then, noto the gentle Saviour, Angels bear the evening prayer; "Saviour, love and bless my father, Keep him safe beneath Tay care."

cessive Flesh. The recent publication in England of amphlet descriptive of Mr. Banting's plan or reducing fat people to a comfortable state fleanness has stimulated discussion. Mr. Banting, whose case has created a grea deal of controversy, is an Englishman who gained the buik of Falstaff by living chiefly n farinaceous food, and reduced his reight by taking up a meat diet. success of his experiments has inrriched opice for half the journais and magazines n England, and reminds the London Sixcony Magazine of some remarkable casee ohesity; also prompting it to an explenan of the cauces of excessive fatness.

It is certain that exercise, anxiety mind, want of sleep, and spare food are oir-cumstances opposed to fatness. This fact is illustrated by Shakespears, when Cosar saye to Antony:

There are casee on record among our-selves, where unwieldiness led to estimaion. The coruplent antiquary, Grose, was equested by his butcher to tell all his riends that he bought his meat from him, and the paviers of Cembridge used to say. has often been the butt of jocularity. Dr. Stafford, who was enormously fat, was honcred wiff this epitaph: "Take heed, O good traveler, and do not tread hard For here the Dr. Stafford in all this Church-yard." Various ludicrous anecdotes are related f fat people. A come between Mre. Clive and Mrs. Pritchard, two corpulent actresses, mnet have been very amusing. They were playing in the parts of Lady Easy and Edging, in the "Careless Husband," when the former desires Edging to pick np a letter ehe had dropped; and Mrs. Clive, who might as well have attempted to raise a hundred pound weight, exclaimed: "Not I, indeed; pound weight, exclaimed: "Not 1, indeed; take it np yourself, if, you like it." This answer threw the audience into roars of laughter, when Mrs. Pritchard replied: "Well, if you won't take up the letter, I must find some one who will;" and, so eaying, she beckened to a servant in the wing, who came forward and terminated of porter, and yet this ravenous brute was a perfect skeleton. Anatomical pursuits are also known to accasion collongoint. This has been frequently observed among medical pupils.

Professor Mascagni attributed his corpulence to his constant attendance on dissecons.

And the following lines were inscribed on the tomb of a corpulent chandler:

that a lady of Cilfton used to call him."the walking feather-bed." At the Court of Louis the XV. there were two iusty noblemen, related to each other, the King having raliled one of them on his orpulency, added:

"I suppose you take little or no exercise?"
"Your Majesty will parden me," replied the bulky Duke, "for I generally walk two or three times round my cousin every morn-Ing."

For the cure of corpulency, dimlention of food of a patritious nature has been generally recommended; added to this, little sleep and much exercise, are advised. Acids to reduce fatness are frequently admin-istered, but have done considerable mis-Among other wonderful accounts of their efficiency in each ceses, it is related of a Spanish General, who was of an enoraize, that he drapk vinegar until his bulk was so reduced that he could fold his skin round his body. For a similar purpose soap has been fre-quently recommended, particularly by Dr. Flemyng. He began this experiment with one of his patients, who weighed twenty stone and eleven pounds (jocky weight), in July, 1754. He took every night a querter of an ounce of common Castile sosp. In August, 1756, his buik was redneed two stone, and in 1760 he was brought down to proper condition.

Darwin is of opinion that salt and salted eet are still more efficacious than soap. All these experiments, however, are generally not only useless but pernicious, and frequently prove fatal. Mr. Wadd, from whose curious work on corpulence much is extracted in this article, properly observes "certein and permanent relief is only to be sought in rigid abstemionsness and a strict and constant attention to diet and exercise." Dr. Cheyne, who weighed thirty-two stone, reduced himself one-third: and enjoyed good health till the age of eventy-two.

In another case, attended by Dr. Gregory, of Edinburgh, the patient weighed twenty-three sione, and, by a regular system of diet, was brought down to fifteen stone. In this instance, brown bread, with a certain quantity of bran in it, wes employed; and t is well known that the slimentary secreions are materially altered by the quantity of bread. The article of drink also re-quires much altention. Corpulent persons generally indulge to excess, and, in this case, every endeavor to reduce them will be in vain.

We frequently see our jockeys reducing themselves to the extent of a stone and a half in the week. A lower scale of diet is by no means as injurious as it is generally supposed. The English prisoners made by lippoo Saib, though kept upon scenty pit-ance of broad and water, found themselves n better health than before, and some of hem were cured, during their captivity, of iver complaints of long and severe duration.

When the Duke de Choiceul, a remarkaoly meager man, came to London to negotiate a peace, Charles Townsend being asked whether the French Government had sent the preliminaries of a treaty, answered, "he had sent the outline of an embassedor." HOW TO GET PAT.

That change of spare diet to a more nutritious food may bring on some corpu-tence is eviuced in an anecdote of Colley libber, who relates that a poor, half-starved actor who used to piny the apothecary in Romeo and Julie to the life, and with great applause, received an augmentation of salary in consequence of his popularity. Unfortunator, increase of wealth lead him to increase his fare, until he gradually as-eumed a plumpness which untitted him for he worn-out pharmacopolist; and not being able to perform in any other line, the non man was discharged. However, poverty once more brought him down to his original condition, when he reappeared upon board as triumphantiy as ever.

board as trium-hantly as ever.

If embonpoint is generally a sign of good humor and a cheerful disposition, leanness frequently batokene a sour, crabbed, and ill-natured cheracter. Solomon has said, "A merry heart doeth good like medicine, but a broken spirit drich the bones." This observation, however, can not be considered a rule in forming a judgment of easy attempt, in our intercouse with the world, when physiognomy is not always a enre guide in the selection of our companions. Dr. Franklin tella a singular story on this subject:

"An old philosophical gentieman had grown, from experience, very cautions in avoiding iii-natured people. To endeavor to ascertain their disposition, he made use of his lege, one of which was remarkably handsome; the other, by some accident, crooked and deformed. If a stranger, at the first interview, regarded his ugly leg, nore than his handsome leg, he doubted him but if he apoke of it, and took no notice of his handsome leg, that was sufficient to determine the philosopher to have no futher acquantance with him. Every body has not this two-legged instrument, but every one, with a little attention, may observe signs of this oarping, fault-finding disposiion, and make the same resolution of avoiding the acquaintance of those infected by it. I therefore advise those querulous, by it. I therefore advise those querulous, discontented, nnhappy people, if they wish to be respected and beloved by others, and happy in themselves, to leave off looking at the ugly leg."

Various expedients, in addition to s Various expedients, in addition to a better diet, have been recorted to, to restore lean persons to a better case; but among ls that of flageliation. Galen says tha ree-dealers, having been observed to fathorsee for sale by flogging them, ar analogous method might be useful with spare persons who wish to become stouter. A remarkable case of leannoss is men-

Erasmus states that the Gordil carried their admiration for corpulence to such an extent that they raised the fattest of them to the throne. It is well known that the preposterous eire of some of the Hottentots is described a perfection, and one of their their states of his desication, was favored with the following inminous answer: "Sir, there is a predisposition in your constitution to make you lean, and a disposition in your constitution to keep you so." There is no doubt that food materially infinences this condition of mankind, although we frequently see enormous eaters who are miscrably lean, and fat persons hie finger. After she died, had her body whose diet is most scanty. During the last war a ravenous French prisoner ate four pounds of raw owndder, ten pounds of raw beef, and two pounds of candie per diem, diluting his meals with five quarts of porter, and yet this ravenous brute was a perfect dealer.

"PICCIOLA."

It was a sergeant old and gray,
Well sluged and bronzed from eie
Went tramping in an army's wake,
Along the turnpike of the village.

For days and nights the winding host Had through the little place been marching And ever loud the restles theered, Till every throat was hourse and parching.

The Squire and former maid and dame, All took the sight's electric stirring, And hate were wared and staves were song, And kerchiefe white were countless whirring.

They only saw a gallant show
Of heroce stalwart under banners,
And in the flerce, heroic glow.
'Twas theirs to yield but wild bozanuas.

The sergeant heard the shrill hurrahs, Where be, behind, in step was keepli But glancing down beside the road, He saw a little maid sit weeping. 'And how is thie!" he gruffly said-A moment pausing to regard her —
"Why weepest thou, my little chit?"
And then she only cried the harder.

"And how is this, my little chit?"
The stardy irroper straight repeated;
"When all the village cheered us on.
-That you in tears apart are scated?"

"We march two hundred thousand strong, And that's a sight, my haby beauty, To quicken stlence into song And glorify the soldler's daty."

"It's very, very grand, I know,"
The little maid gave soft replying;
"And father, mother, brother, too,
All say 'hurrah' while I am creing; "But think —0, Mr So'dier, Ihiuk, How many little aleters' brothers Are going all swert to fight And may be killed, as well as o'hers."

"Why, bless thee, child," the sergesni said, His brawny band her curis carcasing. "The left for little once like thee To find that war's not all a blessing." And "bless them;" once again he cried:
Then cleaved his throat and looked indignant,
And marched away with writhled brows,
To stop the struggling tear benignant.

And still the ringing shouts went up From doorway, thatch and fields of tillag : The pail behind the standard seen By one slone of all the village.

The oak and cedar bend and writh when rouse the wind through gap and braken; But 'tie the tenderest reed of all That tumbles first when earth is shaken.

THE LANGUAGE OF COLORS—The Phalansterian School, Fourier's disciples, are the most precise and positive in their opinions. They hold that violet is analogous to friendship, blue to love, as suggested by blue eyes and azure eky. A bunch of violets would, therefore, tell a lady's suntor that friendship is all be has a right to expect. Yellew is paternity or maternity; it is the ray of the spectrum which causes the germ to shoet. Red figures ambitton (vide the planet Mars;) indigo, the spirit of rivalry; green, the love of change, feveritism, the Influence exerted by an individual. Certain persons have the gift of fascinating all who approach them; and black, which absorbs all the rays of the spectrum, is the reverse of white, which combinas them in one. Besides the seven primitive colors, gray Indicates poverty; brown prudery; plak, modesty; silver-gray (semi-white), feeble friendship; pale pink, false shame.

Suppression of Monastic Establishments in Poland.

WARSAW, Nov. 28. For several days past arrangements have been made, and the military anthorities have received secret orders to hold themselves in readiness, for the impanding sup-pression of all monastic establishments throughout the Kingdom. The final instruc-throughout the Kingdom. The final instructions arrived yesterday by conrier and telegraph. In the capital the suppression was carried out as follows:

Punctually at midnight a Colonel, with a body of troops, repaired to each religious house, assembled the monks, read to them the Viceroy's order, and desired them to get ready to leave at half-post four by railway for a foreign country. Of the twelve religious establishments in Warsaw three were exempted, upon condition that they should receive no mere novices, and thus dis out gradually. The other nine were dis out gradually. The other nine were suppressed in the manner stated, the officer in some cases leaving two monks, in others three, and appointing one of these as the future superior. By two o'clock the suppression was completed in this city, and probably throughout the kingdom. The monasteries remained in the hands of the military, and the monks were conducted under a strong except at the appointed. military, and the monks wers conducted under a strong escort, at the appointed hour, to the railway station, where Adjutant General Baron Korff, with his staff, superintended their departure. Each of the exiles received a sum of one hundred roubles to pay his expenses. Everything passed off without disturbance. Religious houses devoted to a charitable purposs—as, for instance, the care of the sick—and which have in no degree taken part in the which have in no degree taken part in the insurrection, remain exempt from the suppression. Whither the banished monks will go is not yet known; it is enpposed, nowever, they will distribute themselves however, they will distribute themselves over linly and France.

The report concludes:

1.0f the 155 monasteries and 42 convents (containing 1,035 monks and 549 nuns), 71 monasteries with 304 monks, and 4 convents with 14 nuns, exist in contravention of the canonical rules, which ordain that for the better observance of discipline, sach religious house shall contain at least eight monks or nuns. Many of these have been found guilty of supporting the insurrec-tion, of concealing bands and individual insurgents, of containing arms and secret printing presses, of administering the oath to assassinate, &c. Among the establishments possessing the canonical number of inmates, 39, containing 674 monks, have been convicted of open and distinctly proved participation in the insurrection."
